The luxurious Veer Towers at CityCenter Las Vegas is now open, in addition to the model homes.

The Veer Towers is an architectural wonder. The stylish building is comprised of two 37-story glass towers that are inclined at five degree angles.

The latest addition to the 67-acre CityCenter is now the most architecturally significant residential component. Units at Veer Towers are priced from $300,000 to more than $3 million (studios, 1, 2 & 3-bedrooms and penthouses).

Each Veer Tower is home to approximately 335 contemporary condominium residences, that will range from approximately 500 to 3,300 square feet.

The CityCenter's Veer Towers was designed by internationally renowned architect Helmut Jahn. The Veer Towers is an architectural and artistic landmark on the global scene – a masterful translation of energy and excitement into physical form.

As the only completely residential development, Veer Towers is inclined at five-degree angles, and additionally lives up to the celebrated buildings' name because the property consists of two 37-story glass towers that boldly shimmer both day and night.

If you are looking for the finer things in life along with unequaled views of Las Vegas, Veer Towers residents can enjoy the following luxury amenities – infinity-edge pool, hot tub, sun deck and a bar for outdoor entertaining.

Veer Towers at CityCenter also provides a recreation room, private media room, in addition to a fitness center with both men's and women's steam rooms and saunas that can be found on the 37th floor, adjacent to the beautiful pool deck.

You can find additional offerings such as a private boardroom and business center, mail room, bike storage, concierge service, private residential valet, plus 24-hour security.

Tony Dennis, executive vice president, CityCenter Residential Division states, "Arguably the most striking residential building in the world, Veer Towers is a masterful work of contemporary architecture offering buyers an immersive, artful lifestyle set within the urban mosaic of CityCenter."

Veer Towers has also affirmed its commitment to delivering a new level of environmental consciousness to the Las Vegas Strip. The luxury property has proudly earned CityCenter's sixth LEED® Gold certification from the U.S. Green Building Council.

In celebration, Veer Towers is offering a Grand Opening Promotion that includes a limited-time studio promotion with a retail value of up to $20,000.
