The Las Vegas condo market continues to come back in a big way.

Veer Towers has sold 14 more units in June and has now sold over 70 condominiums in 2013.

“Veer Towers is helping lead the resurgence of Las Vegas real estate,” said Mark Pordes, CEO of Pordes Residential Sales & Marketing. “After years of falling prices and sales, the market is turning around.”

Sales at Veer Towers, which sit in the heart of CityCenter on the Las Vegas Strip, were ignited further following a grand, Las Vegas-style celebration held onsite in June. The event was designed to celebrate the comeback of the luxury condo market, and to give brokers and potential buyers a firsthand look at all that Veer has to offer.

More than 500 people attended and had the opportunity to openly tour the buildings from the lobbies to the roof top entertainment areas. Guests were also able to tour the newly designed models, getting the chance to see the various layouts and incomparable high style, luxury designs. Following the event, six more units were sold.

Residents are also celebrating and feeling the momentum of the market comeback. Many residents, who are originally from out of state, now consider Las Vegas and Veer Towers their home. Buyers are coming from California, Nevada, Arizona, Canada and Asia.
